

The importance of using AAC in working with children with multiple developmental disorders

Anurova Alexandra
special education teacher in “Colors of the world” project

Communication is a process where two or more people work together and coordinate their actions, constantly responding to each other's actions and context.

*AAC- Augmentative and Alternative Communication

-
- Due to the peculiarities of development, the life of people with multiple disabilities and deafblindness has specifics:
 - Close relationship with parents throughout life
 - The need for special training
 - The need for special inclusion in society

The community of the “Colors of this World” families raising children with multisensory disabilities

The community is aimed at maximizing the inclusion of students in the process of everyday life and providing them with an accessible education.

And we get the following results:

Dialogue opportunity
Personality development
Expanding social circle
Improving social status
Vocational guidance

A vibrant watercolor painting featuring a large, multi-colored rainbow arching across the center. The background is filled with various colors and textures, including green foliage, blue and red flowers, and yellow and purple washes. The overall style is soft and artistic, with visible brushstrokes and blended colors.

THANK YOU