- ▶ The degree of parent's awareness
- ▶ The amount of information reported by the parent and the degree of its misrepresentation
- ▶ The parent's understanding of the purpose of ongoing assessment
- ▶ The level of parent's interest in the assessment results
- ▶ The personal attitude to the specialist

The degree of parent's awareness may be different

 The amount of information reported by the parent and the degree of its misrepresentation.

It is also important for a specialist to understand at what stage of the child`s acceptance the parents are and how painful for them their own trauma associated with the birth of a child with special needs.

The reliability of the diagnoses is extremely important in terms of contraindications.

 The parent's understanding of the purpose of ongoing assessment.

Having a request from a parent is a necessary condition for the effectiveness of the classes.

It is very important for the parent and the specialist to agree on the aims and further development of the diagnosis - this is a single consultation on a separate issue or an examination, which will be followed by the development of a program and further classes.

 The level of parent`s interest in the assessment results is related to previous questions regarding information received from a specialist

The financial situation of the parents also affects, since further recommendations and an understanding of the degree of the proposal effectiveness are directly related to the amount of an effort that the parents will have to make.

- ▶ The personal attitude to the specialist is formed from all of the above as well as the opinions and recommendations of other specialists and /or parents could be added to this.

An important task for a parent is to do everything to help specialists to work with his child passionately and only in that case, in collaboration, we can expect the good results and success of our children.
